Design.

The client of our Camberley project found us online in her search for internal cross bar doors.

She was nearing the later stages of a full refurbishment and modernisation of her forever home.

Taking inspiration from our website, the client was certain that she wanted side screens and an over panel on the double door set.

Due to the size of the aperture, we suggested making both side screens and the over panel 178mm. This allows the space to be opened up for access and gives the doors a height of 2129mm, mirroring the height of the matching single door. This also ensured that the Cross Bars on all doors line up.

Double Door with Side Screen & Over Panel

During the design phase of our Camberley project, we made sure to align with the client's vision for a modern and contemporary aesthetic that would complement the property's style. By utilizing three ultra-slim horizontal Cross Bars, we were able to achieve the desired design and look.

We provide unlimited revisions of the project during the design phase to ensure our client's satisfaction with the appearance and functionality before beginning fabrication.

Single Door

Our Camberley project required no revisions, this was due to an in depth conversation during the survey regarding the design and practicality of the doors.

When clients have a clear idea of what they want, it simplifies the process and allows us to fully understand their needs and preferences. This enables us to create a design that precisely meets their expectations.

AFTER

The Camberley project showcases how traditional-style doors can seamlessly blend with modern architecture. Unlike wooden doors that obstruct natural light and create a dull atmosphere, our InoCross20 doors facilitate the free flow of light throughout any living space. Designed to be both functional and aesthetically pleasing, the doors are engineered to be both lightweight and durable, with a sleek and modern look that complements any interior design.

Our Cross Bar Doors have significantly enhanced the modern tone of this property, adding a tremendous amount of character and complementing the overall aesthetic. We are delighted with the finished result and the difference that our single door and double doors with side screens and over panel has made to the space.

As you enter the property you are greeted by an abundance of light which flows through the double door set into the main entrance hall, creating a light and open ambiance.

The matching single door creates a divide between the entrance hall and open plan kitchen diner, while still providing a sense of connection.

CLIENTS COMMENT.

"The team were extremely helpful and professional throughout the whole process. The doors are exactly as described and designed, I am over the moon. So pleased to have found Joshua James online and would definitely recommend them to anyone looking for internal glass doors. They have since recommended someone to help me with the external doors on my property."
