Design.

Our company, Joshua James Ltd, was contacted by the client for the Harrow project after he discovered us online while searching for steel glazed Cross Bar doors for his home.

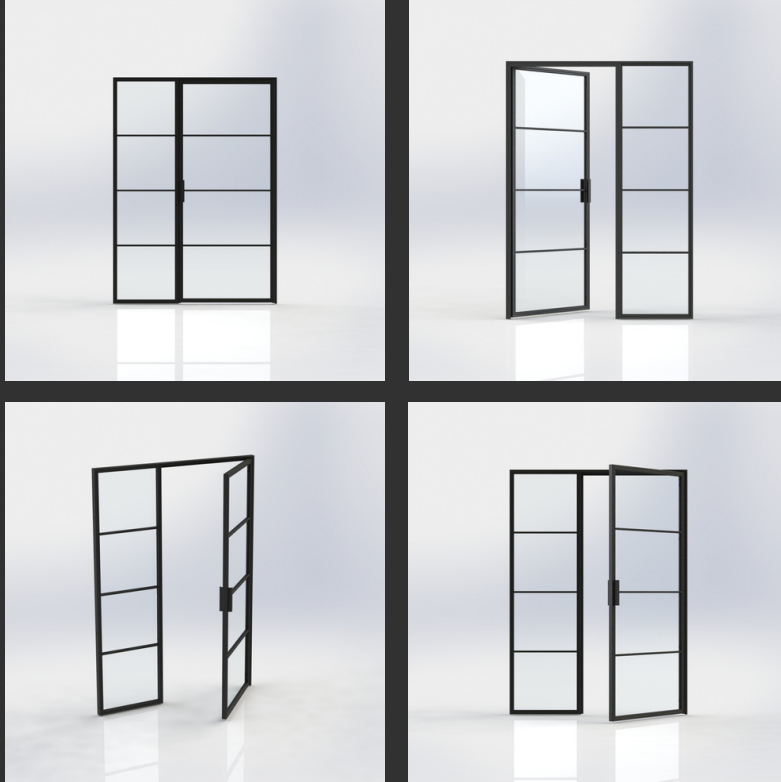

During his search, he spoke with several companies, ultimately selecting us due to our ultra-slim profile that complements his home's modern, contemporary style.

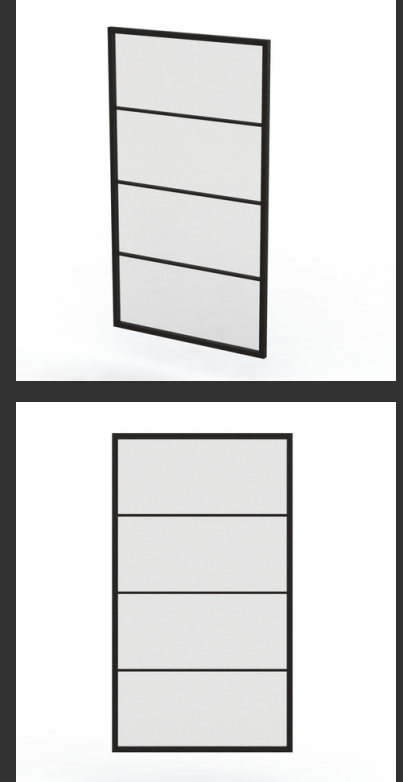

For his project, the client desired a single door with a fixed side screen to divide the space by his front door from the rest of the hallway and home. Additionally, he required a fixed screen to fill an existing opening between his kitchen and reception room.

Fixed Screen

During the design phase of our Harrow project, we took great care to align with the client's vision for a modern and contemporary aesthetic that would complement the property's style. The use of three ultra-slim horizontal Cross Bars enabled us to deliver the design and look that the client desired.

To ensure our client's satisfaction with the door and fixed screens appearance and functionality before beginning fabrication, we offer unlimited revisions of the project during the design phase.

Having a client who knows precisely what they want always helps streamline the process. It allows us to gain a clear understanding of the client's needs and desires, enabling us to create a design that meets their expectations perfectly.

Project Photos.

Our Harrow project is an excellent showcase of the character and charm that our InoCross20 doors can add to a property. Boasting a 20mm frame and 15mm cross bars and bead, our doors maximise the surface area of visible glass, allowing for an abundance of natural light to flood through the property.

AFTER

Each set of our doors that we produce are entirely bespoke and made to measure, ensuring that no two are identical.

Moreover, all of our doors and fixed screens feature internal welding, creating a seamless finish without visible joints.

CLIENTS COMMENT.

"Joshua James supplied and installed two internal glass screens - one fixed and the other with a door. They did an excellent job - provided a quote very quickly, measured up a few days after I accepted the quote, sent me drawings and computer generated images for my approval a few days later and installed the doors in line with the programme they'd advised, a few weeks after that. Looks like they've done an excellent job."
